ABOUT THE LANDMARK

Limmatquai and Rathaus

The Limmat leaves Lake Zurich and runs straight through the old town. Right in the middle of it, on foundations in the water, stands the Rathaus, Zurich's Baroque town hall. Beside it the Rathausbrücke, once the vegetable market, links the two banks, and along the Limmatquai blue-and-white trams pass a row of old houses with arcades.

On the right bank of the Limmat, between the Grossmünster and the main station. The Rathaus stands in the river at the end of the Rathausbrücke.

River	flows out of Lake Zurich and joins the Aare about 36 km later
Rathaus	built 1694 to 1698 in the river, on the site of the medieval council house
Inside	the cantonal and city parliaments still meet in the Rathaus
First written mention	771
Münsterbrücke	1836 to 1838; four flat stone arches
Rathausbrücke	the oldest crossing; being rebuilt 2026 to 2029
Local name	"Limet" in Zurich dialect

A SHORT HISTORY

Through the centuries

- 771 ● The river appears in writing for the first time.
 - early 1300s ● The Rathausbrücke doubles as a market, earning the nickname "Gmüesbrugg" (vegetable bridge).
 - about 1660 ● The Bauschänzli is built in the river as a five-sided outwork of the city defences.
 - 1836 to 1838 ● The Münsterbrücke is built to plans by Alois Negrelli. Until then the Rathausbrücke was the only crossing for carts.
 - 1864 ● Arnold Bürkli's stone Bahnhofbrücke opens, linking the new station with the old town.
 - 1881 ● The Rathausbrücke gets a cast-iron deck, and the Limmatstein is blown up.
 - 1937 ● A bronze rider, Hans Waldmann, takes his place at the west end of the Münsterbrücke.
 - 1950 to 1952 ● A much wider concrete Bahnhofbrücke replaces Bürkli's bridge.
 - 2026 to 2029 ● The 1970s Rathausbrücke is replaced by a slimmer bridge with fewer piers, so floods can pass more easily.

LOOK CLOSER

The rock in the river

Just below the Rathausbrücke lay a boulder, the Limmatstein, that only showed itself when the water was very low, in years like 1580, 1740 and 1814. Most of it was broken up in 1823, and in spring 1881 the rest was blasted away. The story goes that the butchers treated the workers to a drink afterwards.

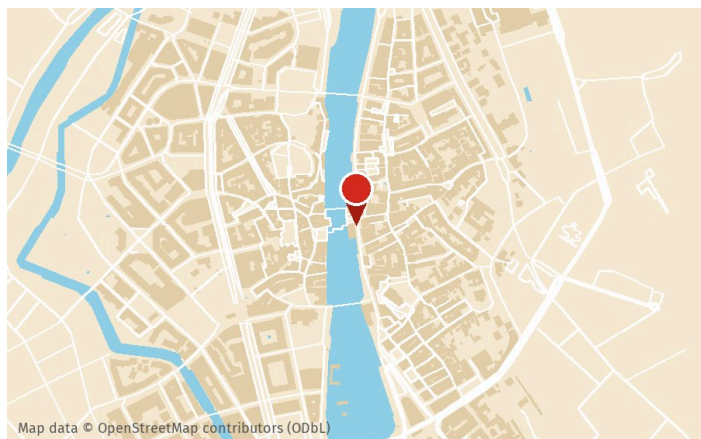

A market on the water

The Rathausbrücke is so wide that it feels more like a square than a bridge. For centuries farmers sold vegetables there, and after Sunday service townspeople gathered on it for assemblies and ceremonies.

An island for beer

The Bauschänzli was built to guard the city, and in 1841 the city bought it on condition that it stay an open public space. Today it hosts a large beer garden in summer, an autumn beer festival and a circus in winter.

Address

Rathaus, Limmatquai 55, 8001 Zürich

Getting there

Tram to the Rathaus stop on the Limmatquai; or about ten minutes on foot from the main station along the river.

Tip

Stand in the middle of the Rathausbrücke and look downstream: the Rathaus rises straight out of the water on your right, and the trams glide past along the Limmatquai behind it.

The display stand

Every model in the series stands on the same black stand with a nameplate, so your souvenirs line up on the shelf. Build the black strip, press it under the front edge of the model, and press the small 2 × 4 plates (the feet) under its back corners. Then stick the label from the nameplate page on the tan tiles.

Your nameplate

Print this page at 100 % (no “fit to page”), cut out a label along the grey line and stick it on the tan 2 × 8 nameplate of the display stand. Tip: sticker paper or a strip of clear tape on top makes it last.

The Limmatstein

Look in the river below the Rathaus: a small dark stone sits just under the surface.

The Limmatstein was a boulder in the river that only showed at very low water. It was finally blown up in 1881, and the workers are said to have been given a drink by the butchers.

The Rathaus stands in the river on purpose: built on piles in the water, it belonged to neither bank and so to the whole town.
